

---

---

Generators

— Introduction —

---

---

Introduction

What you should understand is:

- We have seen that a function can return a list (for example a list of students), the question is: what if that list was really too large for the main memory? what if we need to take care of the machine's memory?
- Generators are functions that yields (returns) everytime we call them only one value and not all the values.